Sutherland's Inchgower Single Malt Speyside Distillery. 45.2% ABV

Sutherland's: Our mission is to seek out fine rare casks of single malt of various ages and are inique and where the single malt delivers bouquet and flavor notes that excite the most discerning palate. (Not and independent bottler but an independent marketer.)

Nose: Very complex. The spirit is still detectable, with a nutty, beefy style (macadamia). There is something green (parsley), mineral and creamy (vanilla). This eventually leads to an enormous explosion of fruit. Unripe banana and pineapple, (ripe) lychee, mango. Nice!

Taste: Powerful but pleasant on the attack towards the end. Medium sweet, not too sour nor bitter. Still on a green-fruity side, with chives and parley combined with clotted cream, honey and loads of tropical fruits. It certainly delivers.

Finish: Slightly woody towards the finish (vanilla, sawdust), but that's pleasant because it's not dominating. Combine this with the creamy fruity explosion and there is a creamy, fruity explosion for the grand finale.
